I would maybe add to the instructions that they need to respond within a certain amount of time, I timed out once during my first trial because I didn't realize I needed to respond so quickly. I think the timing is good though and didn't have any issues once I realized that.

I would add instructions on finger placement in the beginning like you did for the other one, other than that it seemed good!

The survey at the end was clear and only took me about a minute or two to complete. I think a progress note would be helpful and keep the subjects on track.
